1. ready, set, squat

Junior Hannah Picazo prepares to receive the ball from the opposing server. Picazo said, "Before every serve, I take a deep breath and focus on the server. I want to make sure I have the best pass to my setter!" / anna pittman photo

2. fresh on the court

Sydney Mitchell, 9, is already making waves as a freshman starter. "Starting as a freshman has been an amazing experience; the games are intense but so much fun!" Mitchell explains. / jane granberry photo

3. serving on the sideline

Bethany McCain, 12, continues to cheer on her teammates despite her knee injury. "As the captain of the team," McCain explains, "it's my duty to give my all, whether it's being on the court or cheering off of the court." / susannah case photo

4. everybody clap your hands

Junior Alexis Papp and her teammates clap in sync as their opponents are being introduced. "Ocean Springs is our biggest competition. The atmosphere while playing them is absolutely awesome! Everyone is involved in the game and it makes it so much fun," said Papp. / callie anne mccarty photo

5. set it up

"Communication is the most important part of volleyball! Without talking, you won't get a good pass, the right set, or a good hit. It's so hard to score without communicating on the court." Meredith McCall, 12, sets the ball in preparation for her teammate to score. / anna pittman photo
