'Rona Remote:

ROUND II

BY JANE HURST
MANAGING EDITOR

The week of November 2, the Prep community experienced an uptick in COVID-19 cases. On Friday, November 6, Head of School Lawrence Coco announced grades 9-12 would move to remote learning from Monday, November 9 to Wednesday, November 11.

Some students were sent home the week of November 2 after being identified via contact tracing. Contact tracing is a process where the school contacts a student who tested positive for COVID-19 to find out who has been in close contact with that student. They then send those students home to wait for five days since exposure to the virus, and then they are tested for the virus.

Grades 6-8 remained on campus, which fell under the "JP Hybrid" plan since some students were on campus, and Wsome were remote. The daily schedule was the same despite the switch to the hybrid plan. Prep emphasized that the campus was not closed and that extracurricular activities and sports would continue to take place on campus.

On November 9, the administration sent out another email stating that grades 9-12 would continue
