

Sapphics |

Amaterasu

Chasing flecks, the mockingbird's fading daylight seeks the Sun the Moon had once held in shallow dreams, The scarlet roses desire perfection, Night's retribution,

Twilight's natural order collapsing, ocean's tides have failed. The Sun abandons the Moon, their marriage breaking rocks and boulders, their world's own shoulder, separate in turmoil.

Mary Robinson Coco